

Doc's Job

Written by Kim Thompson

Grade Level: PreK-2

GRL: C Lexile: 180L

Subject: Phonics

Genre: Fiction

Key Idea: Develop fluency by decoding story text with words that have the short o sound

Standards Addressed: RF.1.3.A-B Reading: Foundational Skills, RL.1.1 Reading Literature

1. Before Reading

Make Predictions

Look at the book's cover and title. Discuss what students see and what they think the book is going to be about. Invite personal connections.

Teach Phonics Skills

Copy pages 5 and 6 of this Teacher Note for each student. Ask students to cut apart the picture and letter cards. Make sure students understand the sound-symbol correspondences they will read in the story.

Say consonant sounds /b/, /k/, /d/, /g/, /h/, /j/, /s/, and /t/. Ask students to hold up the corresponding letter cards b, c, d, g, h, j, s, and t.

Say the short o sound and ask students to repeat it after you. Say these word pairs, asking students to raise their o letter card when they hear the short o sound: cab/cob, job/jig, deck/doc, jog/jug, hat/hot.

Slowly say and blend the sounds in cob, cot, doc, jog, hog, job, dots, sob, and hot. Ask students to raise a picture card to show the word they hear. Then, help students count and blend the sounds in each word as they use their letter cards to spell the words.

Teach High-Frequency Words

Make sure students know the high-frequency words they will find in the story. Spend extra time on irregular words, shown in bold, which do not follow common phonics patterns.

a	have	makes	the	what calls	help	on	this	will
did	is	sit(s)	we get	lot	that	well

Introduce the Genre

You can tell this book is fiction because it is about made-up characters and their adventures. The illustrations were drawn by an artist.

Establish a Purpose for Reading

We will read to find out what Doc does during a day on the job. We will practice reading words that have the short o sound.

2. During Reading

Read Together

Chorally read the story aloud together as students point to each word. Or, have students read aloud independently, using quiet voices, as you monitor. When readers have difficulty, stop and provide feedback. Help students associate letters and sounds, blend sounds to read words, and reread sentences fluently.

Check for Understanding

Ask questions about the story. Prompt students to support their answers with details from the text.

- How do you know that Doc is ready to work?
- What animals wait to see Doc?
- Who in the waiting room has a rash?
- Look at page 9. What is in Dog's mouth?
- Why does Hog need Doc?
- Why do you think the little otter is crying?
- Look at page 13. Who has the rash? What does contagious mean?
- What does Doc do after her patients leave?
- Look at page 21. Why does Doc look surprised?
- What happens when you visit the doctor?

Reread and Retell

Ask pairs to reread the story to each other. Each partner may read the whole story, or students may alternate pages. Allow time for pairs to retell the story in their own words, using the illustrations as cues. Invite partners to discuss the story and give opinions about whether they liked it.

In a whole-group follow-up, discuss and agree on the story's characters (Doc, Dog, Hog, otter mother and child), setting (Doc's office), and events (Doc helps Dog, etc.). What might happen to the story if just one character, setting, or event were different?

3. After Reading

- Add words from the story to classroom word walls or word lists.
- Build fluency by reading the story again tomorrow or in a few days.
- Read more stories that feature the short o sound, such as Oscar Otter by Nathaniel Benchley.
- Plan to read nonfiction books about doctors and other community helpers.

Follow-Up Lessons

- Provide short o words on a list or a word wall. Challenge pairs or small groups to use them to write and perform tongue twisters such as Bold Bob jogs a lot.
- Guide students in writing short o words from the story to complete a Word Ladder. (See page 7 of this Teacher Note.)
- Ask students to write and draw on a Beginning-Middle-End graphic organizer to show story events in order. (See page 8 of this Teacher Note.)

Writing Activities

- Dictate phrases and sentences with short o words for students to write and illustrate. Use the phrases and sentences shown in the book on page 22.
- Write a get-well note to Doc from one of her patients.
- Write facts about a doctor's job. Research as needed.

School-to-Home Connection

- Send home the picture and letter cards from pages 5 and 6 of this Teacher Note along with the book.
- Send home the Word Ladder from page 7 of this Teacher Note along with the book.

4. ESE/SWD

- Spend extra time teaching and reviewing sounds, letters, and high-frequency words that will appear in the story.
- Select a subset of short o words from the story (examples: only the character names or only words that end with t or g). Hold students accountable for independently reading only these words.
- Have students listen to an audio recording of the story prior to the whole-group lesson.
- Read each page of the text aloud and have students echo you as they point to each word.

5. ELL/ESOL

- Use visuals to represent spoken words. If needed, find photos and videos on the internet.
- Speak slowly and enunciate words clearly. Make sure to articulate each sound.
- Be mindful of your gestures and facial expressions to make sure they support understanding.
- Write words under the picture cards on page 5 of this Teacher Note to create a glossary for students. Encourage students to refer to it as they read and respond to the story.
- Use props and actions to demonstrate word meanings. For example, show a dot and act out what it means to jot.
- Ask students to share their background knowledge about doctors' offices.
- Help Spanish, Cantonese, and Vietnamese speakers articulate the short o sound, as these languages do not contain the sound or contain only an approximate transfer of the sound. Model correct mouth position and ask students to copy you. Provide handheld mirrors for support. Relate the sound to saying "ah" when the doctor checks your throat and to making your mouth into a circle shape that resembles the letter o.

Tips for Teachers

- Connect to your SMART Board or projector for teacher and student interaction.
- Read aloud together standing up.
- Highlight, underline, and circle information (e.g., sight words, phonics, vocabulary).
- For each page, have a student be in charge of pointing to each highlighted word as it is read.
- Play "I Spy" and have students find sight words, phonics patterns, vocabulary words, punctuation, etc.
- Use with ELL/SWD as a center to listen and then practice reading for fluency.
- Share with parents at home so students can practice reading.
